

Robert McClure

Robert McClure has over 30 years of experience as a blasting and explosives technical expert. Prior to starting his own company, he was the Blasting Initiation Systems Manager for a company that manufactured electronic initiation systems and a Technical Manager for a major explosives manufacturer. Mr. McClure received his formal education at The Ohio State University, Lowell University, and North Central Technical College. Mr. McClure is an active member and Presidential Award Recipient of the ISEE (International Society of Explosives Engineer).